Commissioner for Patents
P.O. Box 1450
Alexandria, VA 22313-1450

Dear Sir:

I, DAVID G. PARKHURST, hereby declare and state as follows:

1. I am a partner in the law firm of Fulwider Patton LLP, located at Howard Hughes Center, Tenth Floor, 6060 Center Drive, Los Angeles, California 90045.

2. Attached is a copy of a purchase order number 120161 dated June 30, 2005, from the Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks, for 500 units of the "Key-O-Prene Boater's Key Floats" from the Applicant, Robert Grossman, which I received from the Applicant, Robert Grossman, to demonstrate the product's value and demand in the marketplace.

3. Attached is a copy of a purchase order dated May 23, 2005, from the Iowa Department of Natural Resources, Des, Iowa, for 500 units of the " Key-O-Prene Boater's Key Floats" from the Applicant, Robert Grossman, which I received from the Applicant, Robert Grossman, to demonstrate the product's value and demand in the marketplace.

4. Attached are copies of web pages from advertising Applicant's product, advertised under the name "Key-O-Prene Boater's Key-Chains," showing photographs of the product corresponding to the claimed invention, and describing the features of the product.

5. The enclosed copies are believed to adequately demonstrate that the claimed boater's keychain has attracted commercial interest from state agencies, and has enjoyed commercial success.

Finally, a boater's key-float that actually does something!

If you have a boat, this is positively the best few bucks you can spend. It will float up to five keys, but more importantly, just an occasional glance at its text and graphics allows you to handle your boat like a professional skipper.

You'll wish every other boater carried one of these, too.

It is concise, practical, and easy to understand. Full color graphics tell you at a glance what to do in most boating situations.

The Key-O-Prene™ key-float consists of five layers of neoprene rubber which fan out to display:

- Navigation Rules and Rights of Way
- Buoys
- Launching and Haul-Out Checklists
- Conversion Tables & Boating Formulas
- Marine Radio Channels
- CPR

Features:

- Designed by a licensed USCG vessel captain.
- Approved and used by state boating agencies.
- Made of high quality neoprene rubber.
- Eye-catching, heat transferred text and graphics.
- Conveniently sized to fit in a shirt pocket.
- Patent pending design.

Brand New, individually poly-bagged, direct from manufacturer.

Dimensions: 3.5" width x 2" height x 5/8" thick. Weight approx. 30 grams.

Quantity discount available. Key-chain can be custom imprinted with your logo or cover art. Minimum order applies.
